Dear Dr. Archibald,

I am planning now to leave here the night of the sixth of July arriving in Montreal on the morning of the seventh and sailing on the morning of the eighth at ten o'clock. Mrs. Penfield will not come with me, at least for the present. I will come to your home soon after arrival but will have breakfast before arriving.

If it would make it easier or better for you I could come a day earlier but would very much rather not if you can work in the things you have in mind in one day.

Please wire me if you are anxious to have me spend two days there. I have so many things to finish up here before sailing that I would otherwise rather wait.

I enjoyed very much talking with you the other day and am anxious to meet people in Montreal.

With best regards,

Sincerely yours,

Dr. Edward Archibald
