

Capt. Harold Elliott

LE

December 31st, 1942

Captain Harold Elliott, RCAMC,
No. 1 Canadian Neurological Hospital,
Canadian Army Overseas.

Dear Harold:

I was very glad to get your letter. It arrived about the same time that Bill Stewart did. Bill looks a bit thin and as though his various attacks of illness had taken something out of him. I agree altogether with what you say about him and have already talked to Brigadier Meakins in regard to him. I know how much he is needed over there by Botterell and I think that things will undoubtedly be planned according to his health and abilities at the moment. We will be delighted to have him work here, or course, any time that the Army feels he should be doing light work.

I am delighted to hear that everything is going so well at No.1, and that you are getting a good deal of surgery one way or another. No arrangements have been made out here as yet in regard to concentration of peripheral nerve injuries. I have had several letters from Colonel Macfarlane in regard to it. No doubt something will be done eventually. Many thanks for having the patella hammer sent to me; I have no doubt it will arrive, and when it does I shall be delighted to have it. Things seem to have been slow as far as the Canadians are concerned, but I have no doubt that you will suddenly be frightfully busy.

With best wishes for all my friends,

Yours sincerely,

WGP/AD