Dear Penfield:

I enclose copy of a letter to Weisenburg.

You will see that the Archives of Neurology in publishing the articles of Walshe, Brouwer, Foerster, Lhermitte, Meyer and yourself would be undertaking a service which our publication of Methods and Problems of Medical Education has done when the special journals decline to publish such material.

I want to get a little better picture of just how adequately the Archives would cover the field in the exchange of ideas on the subject of training of neurologists and psychiatrists.

Yours sincerely,

Alan Gregg.
