Dear Dr. Martin,

I have just received a cablegram from Holmes as follows: "Accept with pleasure - writing. Holmes." Will you write him a formal invitation for the 27th? His address is 9 Wimpole Street, London, W.1.

I would suggest that we might reduce our ante a little and tell him that $600.00 is set aside for travelling expenses and that there will be an honorarium for the lecture for $100.00 or $150.00, whichever you think best. It seems to me much better to put down a specific amount so that he knows what he can do and in the end it may cost us less. If you will mention the stipends I will say nothing about so unscientific a thing as dollars and cents!

Yours sincerely,

WGP/HL.
