Dear Penfield,

Your kind letter reaches me here - when I am invalided from a severe attack of rheumatism which took me last October.

It is delightful to think that your new Institute will be ready for its opening next October.. I have so often had pleasure in hearing of your fine success, & rejoiced in knowing how greatly you are valued & admired by colleagues & pupils in McGill. I should have enjoyed nothing better than visiting Montreal for the opening & bearing my tribute to all you have done; but my obstinate rheumatism, partly crippling me as it does, forbids any hope of my being able to do so. The loss is mine, not yours or the ceremony's.

I am very sorry indeed that Helen has been ill. My love & best remembrances to her, please. She has such splendid spirit. It would have been a joy indeed to see her & thank you both for the generous hospitality. I wish I could have availed myself of it. With every good wish Yours sincerely, C. S. Sherington
