MONTREAL, January
Twenty-sixth,
1928.

Dear Doctor Penfield,

I was delighted to get your letter and to know there is every chance of your coming to Montreal. I have just returned from a short vacation and have not as yet been able to pick up all the strings.

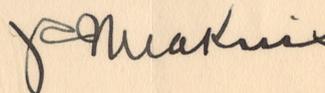

In regard to the rooms, I have gone into this matter and can definitely promise you occupation, - for an indefinite period or until you can be satisfactorily accommodated elsewhere, - of the rooms outlined on the enclosed sketch. You will note that there are three rooms altogether at the far end of the corridor near the ~~Examining~~ Room. I thought you could use room #9 for yourself, room #8 for your technician, and room #7 for other assistants. As it is at present I have two men working in room #7 with rather large apparatus, which they manage to do quite comfortably. I have myself worked in it with two others. It can be easily fitted with additional tables and other accessories. I am afraid that the small room across the corridor I shall have to retain. I hope that this arrangement will be satisfactory to you.

With reference to your expenses I have given instructions for a cheque to be sent to you to cover them. If you do not receive it in a short period of time will you please let me know.

I sincerely hope that Doctor Cone will come with you and I think it will be a good plan if you and he could come to Montreal and spend a little longer time with us so that we might make more specific arrangements for the coming year.

With kindest regards and looking forward to your coming to Montreal,

Yours sincerely,

Wilder Penfield, Esq., M.D.,
